ABOUT ROARING CAMP RAILROAD

Roaring Camp, nestled in the Santa Cruz Mountains southeast of San Jose in the Town of Felton, is a charming re-creation of an 1880's logging town operating trains every day of the year except for Christmas Day. Train buffs – or those who long for the times when traveling didn't involve TSA screening or heavy highway traffic – will love the Roaring Camp Railroads, a heritage railway with authentic 19th century steam locomotives that used to haul giant redwood logs out of the mountains. These trains, which chug through the eye-popping redwood forests to Bear Mountain, are among the oldest and most authentically preserved narrow-gauge steam engines providing scheduled tours to the Big Trees. The town also offers 20th century historic trains to the magnificent Santa Cruz coast.

REDWOOD FOREST STEAM TRAIN

Travel over trestles, through towering redwood groves and up a winding narrow-gauge grade to the summit of Bear Mountain as conductors narrate the history of Roaring Camp, the railroad and the forest. (One hour roundtrip).

SANTA CRUZ BEACH TRAIN

Departing from the Santa Cruz mountains, travel through Henry Cowell Redwoods State Park, down the scenic San Lorenzo River Gorge, across a 1909 steel truss bridge and through an 1875 tunnel before arriving at the Santa Cruz Beach Boardwalk. The boardwalk, which celebrated its Centennial in 2007, is the last of the great seaside amusement parks in the United States and a great day trip for friends, families and colleagues (three hours roundtrip).
